

Trainer on GBV and Menstrual Hygiene During Emergencies Terms of Reference (TOR)

Summary:

Job title	Trainer on GBV and Menstrual Hygiene During Emergencies
Project title	Protective Environment for Girls and Vulnerable Groups in Shelters
Purpose	To deliver 10 emergency sessions to adolescent girls focusing on GBV, menstrual hygiene during emergencies, and key messages on online safety
Location	Lebanon
Duration	10 days
Reporting to	NCLW General Secretary

Background:

Lebanon is facing a rapidly escalating humanitarian crisis with severe consequences for children and essential services. Since the beginning of the escalation and until May 5th, 2702 people have been killed. As of March, these included 172 children, and more than 8311 injured, including over 443 children according to the Ministry of Public Health (MoPH).¹ Displacement continues to rise, with more than 1 million people affected as of May, including an estimate of over 500,000 children (UNESCO).² Over 124,000 people have been hosted in 625 collective shelters, while the majority remain outside formal sites.³

This escalation is triggering repeated displacement for already vulnerable families, exposing children to heightened risks including trauma, disruption of education, family separation and increased vulnerability to violence, exploitation and neglect. The scale and speed of displacement are placing significant pressure on already fragile systems.

The conflict is unfolding in a context of multi-layered socio-economic crises and structural gender inequalities leading to worsening protection risks on women and adolescent girls in Lebanon. This includes emotional, sexual and physical risk with significant consequences on the well-being of women, children, and marginalized groups such as those who are internally displaced, migrants and adolescent girls living with disabilities.

UNICEF Rapid Gender Analysis conducted in November 2024⁴ during the previous escalation of conflict which revealed that displaced women and girls' main concerns were lack of privacy, unsafe access to sanitation, deterioration of mental health, restrictions on girls' movements, and lack of awareness of gender-based violence (GBV) and protection from sexual exploitation and abuse (PSEA) reporting mechanisms. Therefore, tailored programming for and with adolescent girls is essential, especially in emergencies.

As a national entity mandated to mainstream gender in government institutions, including emergency response, an Annual Workplan was signed between UNICEF and the National Commission for Lebanese Women (NCLW) focused on the below:

Protective environment for girls and vulnerable groups in shelters

1. Capacity building led by NCLW to national actors on humanitarian principles, safeguarding that includes PSEA and intersectional approaches.
2. Implementation of 50 POWER4Girls' emergency sessions to 1000 displaced/returnee adolescent girls, and the distribution of hygiene/dignity kits to them.

Objective:

NCLW and UNICEF are seeking to recruit an external trainer in the implementation of a total of 50 emergency sessions focusing on GBV and menstrual hygiene during emergencies, led by NCLW.

Specific tasks:

- Attending a Training of Trainers (ToT) at NCLW on the developed content of the emergency sessions.
- Delivering 10 sessions on GBV, menstrual hygiene during emergencies, and key messages on online safety to 20 adolescent girls per session.
- Updating NCLW regularly on the workflow and challenges faced.
- Submitting a final report following the completion of the assigned emergency sessions.
